The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, the linkage and the pinion for inducing axial rotation must be shown or the feature(s) canceled from the claim(s). No new matter should be entered.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nagata in view of either Boery, Gunzner or Kaufman et al.

Nagata (fig. 3) shows structure similar to that claimed, including an adjustment device for regulating the load of the spring, which consists of a helical surface 21 and an abutment member 3. The patents to each of Boery (fig. 3) elements 13,15, Gunzner (fig. 1) elements 21,22, and Kaufman et al (fig. 2) elements 1b,6a, teach the conventionality of providing a pair of engaging helical surfaces between a pair of rotating elements to induce longitudinal movement, and in view of these suggestions, to have modified the adjustment means of Nagata by providing engaging helical surfaces, would have been well within the level of skill in the art, thereby providing more engaging surface area to lessen the possibility of breakage and/or wear.

To have substituted a pinion or linkage for the worm would have been an obvious modification to one with ordinary skill in the art, as such are old and well known in the art.

Kraft et al, Neumuller, Stevens, Moreschi, Pfenniger, and Elzenbeck show various features of the invention.
